

D.O. Valdepeñas Viña Albali Gran Reserva de Familia

Inspired by the starry night, Félix Solís wanted to create a wine that reflected the joyful and lively spirit of the Spaniards. He named this wine Albali, after a star in the Wassermann constellation.

Viña Albali Gran Reserva de Familia is made from the best grapes of the distinguished vineyards of our own wine region. The grapes for this limited edition are harvested at night to avoid higher temperatures.

▣ Regionen

The name Valdepeñas comes from the eponymous city of antiquity, located in a sun-drenched river valley, dotted with small rock formations - Val de peñas (Valley of the Rocks). Located south of Castile-La Mancha in central Spain, this region is almost completely enclosed by the wine-growing areas of the Denominación de Origen La Mancha D.O. and borders the south with Andalusia. The climate is dominated by extremes, with temperatures ranging from 40°C in summer to -10°C in winter. The future of this denomination lies in the hands of the red wines made from Tempranillo grapes, which are well-suited for aging, such as the Crianzas, Reservas and Gran Reservas.

▣ Verkostungsnotizen

This wine has a remarkable complexity, thanks to its long aging, with light aromas of leather, chocolate and spices. On the palate, it has a perfect balance of tannins, which gives it a good aging potential. The taste reminds you of rich and ripe red fruits (cranberry and raspberry), vanilla and oak. It is a powerful and very flavorful wine, with a pleasant bouquet and long finish.

▣ Speiseempfehlung

Passes very well with red meat, stews, wild and mature cheese.

□ Technische Information

Mitte September, nachts, von Hand geerntet, wenn die Trauben ihren optimalen Zustand erreicht haben. Die typischen Eigenschaften der Tempranillo und Cabernet Sauvignon Trauben werden im Laufe der Gärung und der Alterung entfaltet. Je nach Jahrgang wird der Wein in amerikanischen Eichenfässern mindestens 24 Monate im Durchschnitt gelagert. Die Alterung wird in der Flasche vollendet.
